4 & 5 - Safe Vs. Adventurous:

Safe drinks tend to play it close to a classic. Something adventurous might be for the experienced cocktail drinker or someone that seeks lots of complexity of flavor or ingredients you wouldn't expect in certain applications. Consider its relative to everyone.

6 & 7 - Light Vs. Heavy

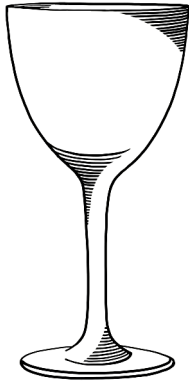

Think of this as how the cocktail leaves you feeling. Heavy can mean both thick or very alcohol forward because both of those kinds of drinks will rest heavy on someone. Compared to drinks that are lighter in alcohol or viscosity, which are a bit easier to crush repeatedly.

1. This is the name we came up with.
2. These are the major flavors of the drink,; if you don't like any of these words, you probably won't like the drink.
3. A light sketch roughly transcribing the vehicle of choice for the cocktail.
8. We like to still list every ingredient so you're familiar with things when you travel and can recognize different spirits and learn what you like and don't.

OLD FASHIONED

spirit. sugar. water. bitters.

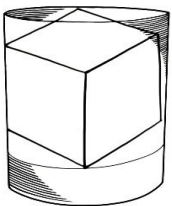

spirit, sugar, water, and bitters - the ingredients that gave name to the phrase 'cocktail'. an old fashioned specifically got it's name due to the dawn of new drinks coming along and guests requesting 'that old fashioned drink'. you may recognize its style being the same basis of a sazerac. not all old fashioned's are created equal - our house version is with bourbon but any spirit can work - as long as it is made with a spirit, sugar, water, and bitters - it's an old fashioned.

The Recipe

2 ounces of spirit ■ 1-2 teaspoons sugar ■ 3-4 dashes bitters
■ citrus oil ■ stirred over medium cubes and strained over large cube

spirit. fortified wine (vermouth). bitters.

not many drinks have gone through everything the martini has. there are 100+ page books solely on this one iconic cocktail. the martini, part of the same family as the manhattan, can be quite revered as one of the greatest drinks known. its origin story isn't entirely clear but the martinez is known to precede it. in the 90's the martini moniker was a comforting one so anything served up was referred to as a martini - creating the spin off bastardizations known today such as the chocolate martini or espresso martini. our full service is an ode to london style martini service. the recipe depends on your preference of spirit: vermouth ratio, extending anywhere from 1:1 to 10:1.

The Recipe

spirit. dry vermouth. orange bitters. kept very cold and garnished with either a citrus expression or olive.

Martini Service:

our house martini is made with either tanqueray no. 10 or ketel one. we build them ahead of time at a 6:1 ratio and freeze. comes with a bowl of complementary martini snacks.

NEGRONI

spirit. fortified wine (vermouth). bitter amari.

perhaps one of the best things to come out of prohibition. most widely reported version of this drink's origin is that it was invented at caffe casoni in florence, italy in 1919. legend tells that count camillo negroni asked his friend, bartender forscio scarselli, to strengthen his favorite cocktail - the americano - by replacing the soda water with gin. scarselli added an orange garnish, rather than the lemon you'd usually get with an americano, and the drink took off. before long, everyone was coming into the bar for a 'negroni.'

The Recipe

equal parts (1 ounce) spirit ■ sweet vermouth ■ campari

22

spirit. sugar. water. bitters.

the cocktail any new orleans bartender can make in their sleep. as the tale goes, this old fashioned was made popular thanks to a man named antoine peychaud who ran an apothecary in new orleans. peychaud made his 'bitters' or tonic for medicinal purposes. fortunately for him he wasn't the busiest so he would spike certain spirits with his bitters and sell them down the road at the sazerac house. it was said that the everyday old fashioned was made with brandy or rye whiskey - but the finer or harder to come by spirits like cognac or jamaican rum - antoine kept for himself. typically spiked and left in the bottle then poured neat. as an ode to the way things could have been done back in the 1800's - our recipe is a blend of a few spirits.

The Recipe

*10 parts classic mash rye whiskey ■ 1 part jamaican pot still rum ■ 1 part pot still apple brandy ■ 1 part XO cognac ■ 1 part sugar
■ 6 dashes peychauds bitters ■ 1 dash angostura
■ let bottle age for at least 30 days and pour into a frozen glass rinsed with absinthe.*

23

$12 MANHATTAN

spirit. fortified wine (vermouth). bitters.

the quintessential 3 ingredient cocktail - certainly as iconic of cocktails from the same family such as the martini & the martinez (old tom gin and sweet vermouth). thankfully it never lived a long period where it was extremely bastardized - maybe aside from bleached red cherries - or aside from all that bad, bad vermouth. for quite a while after prohibition the country was very dry on any quality vermouth - and most of it sat out unrefrigerated left to sour. thanks to the cocktail resurgence, there are now plenty of quality kinds to choose from and bars know now to keep vermouth fresh.

a note on vermouth: some vermouths offer more nutty or chocolate notes and some will be more aromatic or bitter. it can be common in some cities to enjoy a glass of good vermouth like you would any wine.

The Recipe

*2 ounces spirit ■ 1 ounce sweet vermouth ■ 2-3 dashes aromatic bitters
■ served up or on the rocks*

$14 COSMOPOLITAN

citrus vodka. cranberry juice. curacao. fresh lime juice.

When Toby Cecchini invented the Cosmopolitan back in 1988, he didn't intend for it to make its way to a cocktail list at all, let alone become a decade-long bastion of urban drinking. "It was always made wrong, and you could tell, because it looked like a Negroni," says Cecchini. "Nobody was doing the proper amount of lime juice...There was too much cranberry. And still, to this day, people never get it right."

The Recipe

2 parts of citrus vodka ■ 1 part cranberry juice cocktail ■
■ 1 part fresh lime juice ■ 1 part cointreau
